Classroom Kits provide curriculum and all supplies needed to implement hands-on science lessons

LITTLETON, Colo. -- Champions[R] Science Adventures((R))Programs, a leading provider of hands-on science camps and after school clubs, is unveiling a new offering for community centers, parks & recreation facilities and schools across the country. The new Science Adventures Classroom Kits provide organizations with full lesson plans and all experiment components needed to host hands-on, educational science programs. Science Adventures Classroom Kits offer cutting-edge curriculum that meets the National Science Education Standards, addressing subjects in core areas including: life science, physics, chemistry, earth science and space and flight. The Classroom Kits include comprehensive lesson guides that provide science background and step-by-step photos of each experiment, all project supplies to complete each lesson, and web links for online instructional videos.

"Champions Science Adventures is committed to providing educational science programs that inspire a love of learning through engaging activities that explore cutting edge science concepts," says Andy Allan, Director of Curriculum Development for Champions Science Adventures Programs. "The new Science Adventures Classroom Kits provide educators across the country an easy, new way to incorporate science into their camps or recreation programs by providing the dynamic content. It's a self-contained turn-key operation that's easy to follow and can only add value to local offerings."
